What is the "Mangattan Liner"?

The Senseki Line is a suburban railway in northeastern Japan, connecting Sendai with the coastal city of Ishinomaki. To modernize the line, former Tokyo commuter trains of the 205 Series were rebuilt into compact 4-car sets and have been in service since the early 2000s.

In 2003, JR introduced the eye-catching "Mangattan Liner", a special character-wrapped train celebrating Shotaro Ishinomori—one of Japan's most influential manga creators (Cyborg 009). The Mangattan Liner II stands out with its bold, full-body character design, blending everyday commuter rail with Japanese pop culture.
